

Transform City

Why is there civil unrest and deepening division? Can we only dream of unity? Absolutely not! We can become interdependent on the shared gifts and talents, resources, and assets we have in our region to move collectively toward positive change. Scale individual transformation from one person to many, and model what happens when we leverage our collective potential in a shared direction.

LEARNING TARGETS

1. We value contributions of others and estimate them as capable and important as ourselves.
2. We recognize our special skill(s) and use them in mutually dependent community.
3. We recognize our family, city, state, nation, and world as one with many parts with different functions and gifts (faculties, talents, qualities) we use humbly for loving unity.
4. We seek constantly to evaluate our ability as it relates to contributions to collective societal/family/city positive transformation.

LEARNING MODULES

- Module One: Discover the Power of Unity - Skills #1-3
- Module Two: Powerful Bodies Build One Another - Skills #4-7

SKILLS PROGRESSION

*From low to high rigor and depth of knowledge (DoK)

- 1) I calculate; measure how far my actions contribute to collective societal/family/city positive transformation.
- 2) I select and use appropriate tool or procedure for discovering special skills I can use to add value to my community and family.
- 3) I use reasoning, planning, and evidence to support or refute inferences or results stated about family and other organizational structures to show power of serving one another with our different functions and gifts (faculties, talents, qualities).
- 4) I conduct a project that specifies a problem, identifies solution paths, tests the solution, and reports results with a special cohort focusing on societal/family/city positive transformation.

5) I analyze and compare diverse/complex/abstract perspectives, models, etc. for bridging gaps that limit contributions for societal/family/city positive transformation.

6) I critique the historical impact of contributions by various stakeholder groups on collective unity.

7) I articulate new knowledge or new perspective about using my special skill(s) interdependently to build my community.
